The field of telecommunications consultancy and project management involves providing client companies with a range of solutions, according to their requirements, based on specialist knowledge of the telecommunications sector. Our expertise focuses on the deployment of mobile and fiber optic networks.

THE Applus+ SOLUTION

Applus+ provides project management solutions using a business model tailored to the needs of its customers; a model offering maximum communication, commitment and differential service capacity at extremely competitive prices. We add value by helping organisations to enhance their performance and, as such, research and development plays a key role in our strategy.

We have more than 15 years’ experience in telecommunications and we feed this into our project planning, implementation and management. We have management software and reporting programmes for our telecommunication projects that enable us to offer the most suitable solutions to our clients. In addition, our highly qualified, specialists personnel have access to the newest technologies on the market and, never satisfied, strive for constant improvement.

We can either supply individual consultants or a full ‘project management office’ (PMO) team to support all of our client’s telecommunications activities, such as project launching, project implementation or fiber-optic, fixed and mobile network maintenance. We set a benchmark when it comes to the design of the different types of networks previously mentioned, management of vast roll-outs in a multitude of countries and work with a diverse range of telecommunications operators, suppliers and infrastructure managers across the world. This extensive global coverage, which goes hand in hand with in-depth local knowledge, gives Applus+ the distinct advantage of being able to get to work quickly, no matter where in the world a client happens to be based.
Target customers

This service is aimed at companies in any sector that need to rapidly identify solutions to telecommunications problems or situations where a high level of technical knowledge and experience are required.

Key customer benefits

Partnering with Applus+ for telecommunications consultancy and project management services means:

- Rapid deployment of specialist consultants
- Quick results, thereby enhancing productivity
- Reduced costs and adjustments to investments
- Increased production capacity
- Increased value of minor IT and telecoms investments

Contact: info@applus.com