The Applus+ Group and CaixaBank have signed a 2-year sustainability-linked loan agreement totalling €100 million, with an option to extend for an additional year. The transaction refinances a maturing debt facility and is a first for the Applus+ Group.

The loan agreement links the interest rate margin to an annual CO2 emissions reduction target, encouraging Applus+ to reduce them by at least 17% by 2023.

The conditions of the line of credit granted by CaixaBank are improved if the Applus+ Group meets its CO2 emission-reduction targets. This demonstrates the commitment of the Applus+ Group to environmentally-friendly initiatives and projects, which contribute to preventing, mitigating and responding to climate change.

The transaction has been externally reviewed by KPMG, who have evaluated the emissions reduction targets and its alignment with the Loan Market Association's Sustainability-linked Loan Principles 2019.

For CaixaBank, the operation represents further support provided to companies committed to sustainability and innovation with sustainable-financing solutions.
